India

Subject: Request to approve Spouse Visa for Canada

Dear High Commissioner,

I, {Name}, feel delighted to have gotten the one-off opportunity to exhibit my overall personality for your considerate assessment. It has been a few months since my wife moved to Canada with the intention of pursuing her higher studies. Though it was her decision to go to Canada for abroad studies so that she could gain international learning exposure in her preferred area of study, she has been lately struggling to spend her days in Canada peacefully. Even I am finding it difficult to deal with day-to-day life without her physical presence by my side. Both of us are feeling emotionally low as we are part of each other. As my wife has gone for her studies, she is unable to focus on the same as she is missing me a lot. We both need to be by each other's side after which we will be able to concentrate completely on our respective endeavors. In order to make that happen, I request to have an Open Work Permit for Canada so that I can be with my wife and it gets easy for her to pay attention to her study program that she is pursuing in Canada.

To sum up my relationship with my wife, she and I have a very strong bond that has been in existence for about {Duration}. My wife and I used to work in {company} when we met for the first time in the {Year}. We started conversing and getting to know each other. We gradually began to talk over texts and calls which helped our bond get stronger with each passing day. We even used to roam around Maharashtra and Goa together to have some quality time with each other and to understand one another more. We also celebrated many festivals like Diwali, Holi, etc. together which strengthened our bond to a great extent. After dating each other for {Duration}, we finally made up our mind to get married and therefore, tried convincing our parents as she is a North Indian and I am a South Indian. After some time, both of our parents agreed to our marriage, and finally, we got hitched in {Date}. With the elapse of time, our connection is solidifying and we have become closer to each other which is the reason why we are having trouble living apart from each other.

Having been a keen learner, my wife completed her Bachelor's in Business Administration from {college name} and Bachelor of Law from {college name} in India. She developed an interest in gaining a global learning perspective in the management domain as it is where her true penchant lies. As time elapsed, her inquisitiveness to know more about her desired field amplified, and after thinking it through, she cemented her decision of studying in Canada. She did a thorough review after which she decided that she will continue her studies at University Canada West by pursuing the Master in Business Administration program. As she is yearning for an in-depth understanding of the concepts like asset management, pricing, financial planning, and risk management; this study program at University Canada West will equip her with valuable knowledge in these areas, thus helping her become a successful corporate banker.

Since the time my wife has gone to Canada to seek her education, we both have been facing difficulties in our lives. I am unable to concentrate on my work and she is not able to study properly. We both miss each other very much in every aspect. The emotional connection that we have is very strong and without that emotional support, we are not feeling content enough in our life. It is also taking a toll on her health which is upsetting me as well. We want to have each other's physical presence in our life so that we can be happy and it gets easier for us to focus on our respective work.

Once we have each other's company, we will be able to succeed in whatever we aim for. My wife will also be able to put her hundred percent into her studies. This is why I have decided to join her in Canada.

While living with my wife in Canada, I plan on being at the service of the nation by working there. I completed my Bachelor of Science in Information Technology from {college name} and Software Engineering from the National Institute of Information Technology. I am a well-knowledgeable professional and have {Period} of work experience in the position of a Business System Analyst. In the same role, I am currently working in Axis Bank Limited, Mumbai, and am willing to resign from my job to go to my wife in Canada. In Canada, I would like to put my professional expertise to use and work in the same domain in Vancouver which falls under NOC 0213. Once I will get some international professional exposure, I will have an upper hand in my job when I get back to India.

As I have enough funds in my bank account, it is going to be easy for me to manage my two-year living expenses in Canada. Apart from that, my family is financially sound from whom I can seek financial support if I need it in the future. I will reside with my wife in Canada the address of which is {Address}.

After my wife finishes her studies in Canada, we will return to our homeland, India. As my wife's only intention to be in Canada is to study and mine is to provide emotional support to my wife while she focuses on her education, we have no other motive to extend our stay in Canada. In addition to that, our immediate family lives in India with whom we have very close relations. My father has retired from his job and my mother is a homemaker. They have a few properties in India which I need to look after as my parents are getting old and are unable to take care of these properties. As they are reaching old age, they too need utmost care which I wish to give them by being by their side. I want to provide them with all the assistance they need in terms of financial or emotional. I love my parents deeply and cannot leave them all alone in such old age. Hence, it is for them that I am strong-willed to come back to India along with my wife after she concludes her education in Canada. Furthermore, there are ample amount of job prospects in India for Business Analysts and I intend to join a multinational company when I make a return to India.

I, hereby, announce that I am well aware of the visa policies of Canada and am adamant about sticking by them until I fly back to India. On a final note, I humbly request you to consider my application in a positive light and provide me with an Open Work Permit for Canada so that I can be close to my wife and help her focus on her studies while I give her all the emotional support that she needs in order to thrive in her study program.
